Fellow New Jerseyans:

I am happy to share Rutgers University's 2026 Institutional Profile Report, offering objective data about the institution's academic and administrative operations.

Over the past year, Rutgers awarded nearly 18,000 degrees, offered instruction to almost 70,000 students, and provided valuable service to the people of New Jersey. All three Rutgers campuses—New Brunswick (#14), Newark (#32), and Camden (#43)—once again rank among the top 50 public universities in the country by U.S. News & World Report, especially distinguished as engines of social mobility. Only two state university systems, California and New York, boast as many Top 50 public universities.

As the State University of New Jersey, Rutgers carries out its mission of teaching, research, and service with distinction. A longstanding member of the Association of American Universities, Rutgers takes pride in the scholarly excellence of our faculty, the academic achievements of our students, the award-winning innovations of our staff, and the contributions our more than 635,000 alumni make to New Jersey and the world.

The information in this Institutional Profile Report demonstrates our strong commitment to New Jersey and its citizens.

Warm regards,

William F. Tate IV

Information about the Middle States Commission on Higher Education

The Middle States Commission on Higher Education (MSCHE) is a global institutional accreditor recognized since 1952 by the United States Secretary of Education. As an institutional accreditor and member of the regulatory triad, MSCHE assures students and the public of the educational quality for its over 500 institutions of higher education.

MSCHE accreditation applies to an institution as a whole rather than the specific programs within an institution. MSCHE does not approve or accredit individual programs. Each institution is regularly and consistently evaluated and monitored in accordance with the Commission's policies and procedures.

An institution maintains its accreditation unless it is voluntarily surrendered, whether through institutional closure or otherwise, or it is denied or withdrawn by the Commission. For more information, visit msche.org.

ACCREDITATION

Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, is accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education (MSCHE), a voluntary, nongovernmental peer-based membership association dedicated to promoting standards of excellence and improvement in higher education. Accreditation through MSCHE assures current and prospectives students, and our alumni of the high level and enduring quality of a Rutgers education. It helps those that support our students during their studies to be confident in their student's choice to attend Rutgers, and validates the confidence of employers in hiring Rutgers graduates. For our schools and colleges that have additional outside accreditation, these organizations look first to the MSCHE accreditation of the entire university in their own accreditation considerations. Lastly, and certainly not least, accreditation enables our students to enjoy educational funding opportunities, including scholarships, grants, and loans.

Rutgers University was initially accredited by MSCHE in 1921 and was most recently reaccredited in 2018. Our current Statement of Accreditation Status can be viewed at https://www.msche.org/institution/0273/?pss=true. The next accreditation site visit will occur in the early spring of 2027, and the university is currently involved in the Self-Study process in preparation for the visit and reaccreditation consideration. Following this, the university will next be considered for reaccreditation in 2035.

Universitywide Accreditation

The 2027 MSCHE Self-Study process, which is required for reaccreditation extends from fall 2024 through our site visit in spring 2027. The Self-Study report will focus on seven Standards for Accreditation and Requirements of Affiliation, and will be undertaken by a large committee of over 100 members of the Rutgers community, including faculty, staff, students, members of our governing boards, and alumni. Once the draft of the Self-Study Report has been completed, we will be asking all current members of the Rutgers community to review it and provide feedback, as we prepare to submit the report by the end of 2026. This space provides information on the Self-Study process and how the RU community can engage in the university's reaccreditation.

Specialized Accreditation Programs

Beyond the Middle States Commission on Higher Education accreditation for the entire university, many schools, colleges, and programs at Rutgers are accredited by additional organizations to verify their successful completion of a rigorous review and evaluation process by experts in that particular field. These specialized accreditations assure that the quality of teaching, student achievement, curricula, academic support, and other criteria meet certain standards of excellence and quality.

CRR projects can have obvious visible impact (refreshed classrooms to support modern teaching methods) or, more often, cannot be seen as the work improves infrastructure systems and building envelope/roofs, often not visible to the average building occupant. University wide Improvements of the campus environment, both inside building and outside on the campus, is inherently beneficial to the delivery of higher education.

About Rutgers

Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, is a leading national research university and New Jersey's preeminent public institution of higher education. Rutgers' excellence derives from the strength of its academics, research, health care, service, and outreach and from the access and opportunity it provides for the more than 69,000 students who come here to learn and build their futures.

Rutgers' distinctiveness is singular in the United States: It is the nation's sole university that is a major public research university and member of the Association of American Universities (AAU), a land-grant university, and a colonial college founded before the American Revolution. Rutgers' charter was signed in 1766, establishing Rutgers as the nation's 8th oldest higher education institution. In 1864, Rutgers became New Jersey's land-grant university, adding the practical arts and sciences to its mission and positioning its emergence as a modern educational institution and eventual designation in the mid-20th century as The State University of New Jersey, a public institution.

By 1989, Rutgers' stature as a major research institution was recognized with an invitation to join the AAU. In 2013, Rutgers' mission again expanded with the creation of Rutgers Health, a leader in academic health care. In 2014, Rutgers joined both the Big Ten Athletics Conference and Big Ten Academic Alliance, another hallmark of distinction.

Today, Rutgers plays a crucial role in New Jersey, providing a world-class education and serving as an economic engine, job creator, employer, and trusted resource. Rutgers has main campuses in three major New Jersey cities—New Brunswick, Newark, and Camden—and a footprint that spans the state. All three campuses rank among U.S. News & World Report's Top 50 public national universities and Top 100 national universities. Rutgers is one of the only universities in the nation with each campus ranked in the Top 100. At Rutgers, three fundamental values underlie all that we do: offering access and academic excellence, building community, and serving the common good.
